

Dr. Adena Rissman

Represents: The interests of schools of forestry within the state that have curricula in the management of forest resources that are accredited by the Society of American Foresters
UW-Madison

adena.rissman@wisc.edu

Adena Rissman is a professor in the Department of Forest and Wildlife Ecology at University of Wisconsin – Madison. She chairs the accredited Forest Science undergraduate curriculum committee. Rissman directs the PIE lab: People Institutions & Ecosystems and conducts interdisciplinary research on the human and policy dimensions of natural resources and agricultural management. She was appointed to the Wisconsin Council on Forestry in 2020 and represents universities with undergraduate programs accredited by the Society of American Foresters. At UW-Madison, she is affiliated with the Nelson Institute for Environmental Studies, LaFollette School of Public Affairs, Community and Environmental Sociology, Agroecology, and Holtz Center for Science and Technology Studies. She received her PhD from the University of California at Berkeley in the Department of Environmental Science, Policy and Management and her Bachelor’s degree at the University of Texas at Austin. She previously worked on state forest planning for the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources.